

INFINITEK™

A New Solution for a Stronger Copper Tube Protection

PDM latest creation, Infinithek, provides peace of mind when installing copper tubes in harsh environments such as areas with high ocean salinity or highly regulated facilities such as in the food industry or government projects where highest safety standard are often demanded.

PDM Infinithek consists in a proprietary layer built on top of the copper tube and able to protect it virtually from any external agent, making the most durable coil available in the industry.

All PDM copper products may now be ordered with this optional feature.

Please inquire for pricing and availability.

“A proprietary, strong coating on the copper tubing protecting it from virtually any external agent. This is the most durable coil available in the industry.”